SUGAR SUBSTITUTES FOR LOW CARB DESSERTS

Wherever a sweetening is required in a recipe I have suggested erythritol simply as it's my personal sugar substitute of choice. Please feel free to substitute this with your sweetener of choice in the recipes.

Erythritol

Erythritol is a natural sugar substitute which occurs naturally in fruits and mushrooms. It is up to 70% sweet as normal sugar but has virtually no calories, very low on carbs, does not affect your blood sugar, has a low GI index and does not cause tooth decay. It looks like the normal granulated stuff though.

It is absorbed by the body into the blood but then is excreted out into the urine, and therefore unlikely to cause gastric side effect like other sugar substitutes. However, I must point out that it is not suitable for irritable bowel sufferers. You can use erythritol in place of sugar for all your baking. It works just as good as normal sugar. It actually looks like sugar and when I purchase it I often cheekily think to myself, they could be selling me normal sugar at twice the price. I will sometimes grind mine down into a powder with a hand processor to use in cooking. It will look like icing sugar and is easily to dissolve in some recipes.

It is not available in supermarkets but should be available in your local health shop. Failing that, online shopping is your friend!

8. Bake for 20 minutes until firm.
9. Remove from the oven and place a piece of parchment paper over the cake whilst still warm (be careful not to burn yourself!).
10. Remove the cake from the tin, keeping the parchment paper on the bottom of the tin so that the cake has parchment paper either side of it.
11. Gently roll the cake from the smaller edge into a swiss roll shape. This will make it easier to unroll and fill later.
12. Set aside to cool.
13. Once the cake is cool, gently unroll the cake from the parchment paper and spread with the cranberry chia jam. Add an even layer of the whipped cream.
14. Gently roll the cake back into the swiss roll shape.
15. Place in the fridge for at least 30 minutes to help keep its shape.
16. Make the topping by blending the butter and cream cheese together until smooth.
17. Add the erythritol and cocoa powder and beat until smooth and blended.
18. Smoother the topping all over the cake.
19. Keep in the fridge to firm up the topping.
